our history

The Kingsbridge Heights Community Center was founded in 1974 by a group of passionate community organizers. The group was led by three neighborhood women: Mary McLoughlin, Patricia Burns, and Janet Athanasidy.

Upon hearing in 1972 that the 50th Precinct was moving out of its turn-of-the-century building on Kingsbridge Terrace, the three jumped at the opportunity to realize their vision for a community center.

Today, KHCC offers programs and services for all ages and is an active member of United Neighborhood Houses of New York City and United Neighborhood Centers of America. From the adaptive reuse of our historic building to our responsive programs, the Kingsbridge Heights Community Center represents a crucial piece of the fabric of New York City.

our mission

KHCC provides resources to empower Bronx residents from cradle to career to advance education and well-being for a vibrant community. We achieve this in an environment that fosters academic milestones, literacy, mental health support, nutrition, technology, and the arts.
Greetings,

As we reflect on 2019 and what an important year that was for us in celebrating our innovative KHCConnect case management system, we do so in the eye of a global pandemic. Last year, we worked diligently to lay a foundation for efforts to meet the ongoing needs of our community. This foundational work has been especially important during crisis.

Our community's investment in KHCConnect and all of our services could not be more palpable. We also sustained sequential Parenting Journey courses, in Spanish and English, supporting parents during trying times. We provided pathways to citizenship as well as language development courses to improve job access. Through Early Childhood services, we sustained children's development and parents engagement, emphasizing school readiness as well as social, emotional development.

We recognized that our youth are the leaders of their own destiny and created open spaces for their development, curiosity, and talents. We supported them as they advocated for themselves (anti-bullying initiatives) and in the community (campaigning for summer employment). And, we improved outcomes for youth and parents by strengthening interconnectedness between our services trauma care, youth leadership and academic milestones.

Lastly, our investment in the wholeness of our community bared its benefits. We introduced meditation for little ones, maintained two beehives, increased garden engagement for community members, and provided access to fresh produce for families in need.

KHCC continues to grow. With the support of our generous funders, local representatives, our dedicated board of directors, and phenomenal staff, we hold onto our commitment: to build a better Bronx, one family at a time.

Sincerely,

MARGARET DELLA
